

---

Contents

List of Figures and Appendices	ix
Foreword	xi
Esther Grassian
Preface	xv
Information Literacy Instruction and Standards	xvi
Book Organization	xviii
Using Technology at Your Institution	xxi
Acknowledgments	xxiii

Part I: The Collaborative Web

Section Introduction	1
1. Developing Blog and Wiki Communities to Link Student Research, Community Service, and Collaborative Discourse	5
Thomas P. Mackey and Jean McLaughlin
Introduction	5
Literature Review	6
The Honors College	11
Disciplinary Perspectives	12
Library Support for Discipline-specific Courses	14
Partnerships in Pedagogy	14
Technology Tools: Blogger, Bloglines, and Peanut Butter Wikis (PBwiki.com)	17
Collaborative Course Assignments	18
Assessment Strategies	23
Conclusion	25

2. A Conversation about Collaboration: Using Web-based Video Streaming to Integrate Information Literacy into a Research Assignment for a Large Blended Class	29
Flavia Renon, Timothy A. Pychyl, and Christopher P. Motz
Introduction	29
The Librarian's Perspective	30
The Faculty Member's Perspective	32
Our Second Instructor Reflects on the Student's Perspective	33
Bringing Our Concerns Together: The Genesis of Our Relationship	34
Planning for Success Through Collaboration and Integration	36
The Research Assignment: "Beyond Accidental Pedagogy"	38
Assessment	43
Reflections on Our Challenges	44
Our Next Steps Together	46
Summary and Conclusion	47
3. The World War II Poster Project: Building a Digital Library through Information Literacy Partnerships	51
Abby Clobridge and David Del Testa
Introduction	51
The Project Team	53
Institutional Context	53
The Pedagogy of the Poster Project	55
The World War II Poster Project	57
HIST100: A Faculty-Staff Collaboration	63
Lessons Learned	64
Part II: Course Management Systems
Section Introduction	83
4. Beyond the Blended Librarian: Creating Full Partnerships with Faculty to Embed Information Literacy in Online Learning Systems	87
Laura E. Briggs and James M. Skidmore
Information and the University Education	87
Literature Review	88
The University of Waterloo	92
German 272: German Thought and Culture	93
Integrated Collaboration	94
Learning and the Online Course Environment	96
Assessing Results and Attitudes	100
Some Conclusions	106

5. WISPR: A Constructivist Approach to Information Literacy Education in Blended Learning Environments	111
K. Alix Hayden, Cindy Graham, Shauna Rutherford, Jean Chow, and Claudette Cloutier
Introduction	111
Background	111
WISPR Development	116
Case Studies	122
WISPR and Future Direction	134
6. Library Research Video Mix: The Use of Collaborative Multimedia via WebCT in a Senior Experience Course for Business	139
Ann Manning Fiegen, Keith Butler, and Regina Eisenbach
Introduction	139
Related Literature	141
An Environment Conducive for Technology and Community	142
AACSB, Information Literacy, and the College	143
Discussion of Case Study and Faculty-Librarian Collaboration	143
Information Research Competencies and the Video Mix	149
Assessment of Technological Innovation and Pedagogical Approach to Student Learning	152
Conclusion	156
Enhancements to the Current Model	156
Part III: Online Assessment
Section Introduction	161
7. Assessment in Small Bytes: Creating an Online Instrument to Measure Information Literacy Skills	165
Nora Hillyer, Marvel Maring, and Dorianne Richards
Foundational Layer: Literature Review	167
Institutional Layer: University Opportunities and Expectations	168
Disciplinary Layers: Blending Voices	170
Planning, Developing, and Delivering the Test Instrument	172
Modifications: Technology and Pedagogy	174
Study Size, Initial Effects, and Results	177
What We Learned from Phase I	180
Phase II: Future Possibilities	182

8. A Constructivist Approach to Instructional Technology and Assessment in ESL Course Design	193
Penny Bealle and Kathleen Cash-McConnell
Introduction	193
Related Literature	194
ESL and IL at Suffolk County Community College	199
Aligning ESL016 Objectives with Student Learning Needs	200
Information Literacy: An Incremental Process	202
Technological Competency: An Incremental Process	206
Benchmarks of Student Progress	209
Conclusion	213
Current Challenges and Future Directions	213
About the Editors and Contributors	219
Index	225